I would like to take this opportunity to advise you on my personal experience with Ken Deutsch. I am the Forum Editor for the Independent Collegian and have worked closely with Ken for a couple of weeks now. This may not sound like a long enough time working with someone to give a holistic and piercing account of them, but, rest assured, I have asked my well established IC colleagues for their opinions regarding Ken and I have heard nothing but glowing praise. Even in the limited period of time that I have worked with Ken, his professionalism and writing skill have thoroughly impressed me. Ken is quite punctual with his submissions, providing us with a new column every week well before the deadline in addition to the two stand-by columns he gave me at the beginning of the year. Despite the relatively large number of his columns I have at any one time, reading his work is never tedious as it is all rather versatile. Ken can write on subject matters both hilarious and serious with ability sufficient to draw readers to our forum section week after week. Some of our columnists struggle to make clear the theme of their columns, whereas Ken's intended message is very discernable and indeed salient to all possible readers.

Sincerely,

Joshua Martin
Forum Editor
